Liner Information: Your new accessories will come to you with a protective surface liner. Leave this liner in place until the installation is complete to prevent finger prints and or possible scratches during installation.

1. Scrub the top surface of the factory fuse box lid with alcohol to remove any and all road grim and dirt. Then swipe that area with the adhesive promoter provided.
2. Your new cover comes to you with four Velcro cookies. These have been provided as the attachment device for the new stainless cover. Simply peel the release liners from each of the four halves and then press them onto the factory covers four corners. Then peels the release liner from the remaining half's and attach them the cookies you already set in place. This will leave the exposed adhesive facing upwards ready to receive the new stainless cover.

3. Your new stainless cover comes to you with two long notches at the sides of the cover. These notches will align with the plastic clips at the side of the factory fuse box platform. Carefully align the notched as to you press the new cover in place atop the factory plastic cover. The finger tab of the new cover will face the rear of the vehicle. Remove the protective liner.
